Gospel Reflection

GOD MUST ALWAYS COME FIRST

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

One of the greatest struggles in human life is knowing how to balance our responsibilities to God, our families, our work, and society. Sometimes, we become so occupied with making a living that we forget the God who gives us life. We become so concerned about money, success, and what people think of us that we forget the One who created us. Today's Gospel gives us a simple but powerful message: "Give back to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, and to God what belongs to God." Jesus is not asking us to choose between being good citizens and being good Christians. He is reminding us that while we have responsibilities to society, our first loyalty and deepest devotion belong to God. As St. Augustine beautifully expressed, "You have made us for yourself, O Lord, and our heart is restless until it rests in you." No amount of money, power, or earthly success can fill the deepest hunger of the human heart - only God can.

In the first reading, God makes us understand that he can work through unexpected people. God speaks about Cyrus, a pagan king whom He chooses as an instrument to accomplish His divine purpose. This teaches us that God is not limited by our expectations. He can work through people we least expect, situations we do not understand, and opportunities we may easily overlook. Consider a farmer who plants a seed in the ground. The farmer waters it, protects it, and waits, but he cannot command the seed to grow. Life comes from a power greater than himself. In the same way, we must do our part while trusting in God's wisdom and providence. Perhaps you are going through a difficult season, wondering why God has allowed certain people or circumstances into your life. Do not lose hope. God can bring something good out of unexpected situations. As the Lord declares in today's first reading, He alone is God. The person who trusts in God does not need to understand everything before continuing to walk in faith.

St. Paul in his letter to the Thessalonians, gives thanks to God for their faith, love, and hope. Their Christianity was not merely something they professed with their lips; it was visible in the way they lived. This is a question each of us must ask: If someone watched my life for one week, would that person see evidence of my faith? Would my family experience God's love through me? Would my colleagues see honesty in my pastoral activity? Would the poor find compassion in my heart? St. Teresa of Calcutta once said, "Not all of us can do great things. But we can do small things with great love." Sometimes, holiness is found in the mother who patiently cares for her children, the worker who refuses to cheat, the priest who faithfully serves his people, or the person who forgives an injury instead of seeking revenge. Dear friends, faith becomes powerful when it is translated into love. The world does not need Christians who only speak about God; it needs Christians whose lives help others encounter God.

What Do You Owe God? In the Gospel, Jesus asks us to give Caesar what belongs to Caesar and to God what belongs to God. The coin carries Caesar's image, but whose image do we carry? The Book of Genesis tells us that we are created in the image and likeness of God. Therefore, giving God what belongs to Him means offering Him not merely our money or a few minutes of prayer, but our whole lives: our hearts, our choices, our relationships, our gifts, and our future. We can pay our taxes, fulfil our duties, and work hard, but we must never sell our conscience, abandon our faith, or sacrifice our relationship with God for worldly gain. Today, let us ask ourselves: Have I given God my heart, or have I given it entirely to money, ambition, resentment, or fear? Caesar may have a claim on our coins, but God has a claim on our hearts.

May we learn to live responsibly in this world without forgetting our eternal home, and may everything we do reflect the image of God within us. Amen.

Reflexión sobre las Escrituras

DIOS DEBE SER SIEMPRE LO PRIMERO

Queridos hermanos y hermanas en Cristo,

Una de las mayores dificultades de la vida humana es saber cómo equilibrar nuestras responsabilidades para con Dios, nuestras familias, nuestro trabajo y la sociedad. A veces, estamos tan ocupados ganándonos la vida que nos olvidamos del Dios que nos da la vida. Nos preocupamos tanto por el dinero, el éxito y lo que la gente piensa de nosotros que nos olvidamos de Aquel que nos creó. El Evangelio de hoy nos transmite un mensaje sencillo pero contundente: «Dad al César lo que es del César, y a Dios lo que es de Dios». Jesús no nos pide que elijamos entre ser buenos ciudadanos y ser buenos cristianos. Nos recuerda que, aunque tenemos responsabilidades para con la sociedad, nuestra lealtad principal y nuestra devoción más profunda pertenecen a Dios. Como expresó maravillosamente san Agustín: «Nos has creado para ti, Señor, y nuestro corazón está inquieto hasta que descansa en ti». Ni todo el dinero, ni todo el poder, ni todo el éxito terrenal pueden saciar la sed más profunda del corazón humano; solo Dios puede hacerlo.

En la primera lectura, Dios nos hace comprender que puede actuar a través de personas inesperadas. Dios habla de Ciro, un rey pagano al que elige como instrumento para cumplir su propósito divino. Esto nos enseña que Dios no está limitado por nuestras expectativas. Puede actuar a través de personas que menos esperamos, situaciones que no comprendemos y oportunidades que fácilmente podríamos pasar por alto. Pensemos en un agricultor que planta una semilla en la tierra. El agricultor la riega, la protege y espera, pero no puede ordenarle a la semilla que crezca. La vida proviene de un poder superior al suyo. Del mismo modo, debemos poner de nuestra parte mientras confiamos en la sabiduría y la providencia de Dios. Quizás estés pasando por una etapa difícil y te preguntes por qué Dios ha permitido que ciertas personas o circunstancias formen parte de tu vida. No pierdas la esperanza. Dios puede sacar algo bueno de situaciones inesperadas. Como declara el Señor en la primera lectura de hoy, solo Él es Dios. Quien confía en Dios no necesita comprenderlo todo para seguir caminando en la fe.

San Pablo, en su carta a los tesalonicenses, da gracias a Dios por su fe, su amor y su esperanza. Su cristianismo no era algo que se limitaran a profesar con los labios; se manifestaba en su forma de vivir. Esta es una pregunta que cada uno de nosotros debe plantearse: si alguien observara mi vida durante una semana, ¿vería esa persona pruebas de mi fe? ¿Experimentaría mi familia el amor de Dios a través de mí? ¿Verían mis compañeros honestidad en mi labor pastoral? ¿Encontrarían los pobres compasión en mi corazón? Santa Teresa de Calcuta dijo una vez: «No todos podemos hacer grandes cosas. Pero podemos hacer pequeñas cosas con gran amor». A veces, la santidad se encuentra en la madre que cuida pacientemente de sus hijos, en el trabajador que se niega a hacer trampa, en el sacerdote que sirve fielmente a su pueblo o en la persona que perdona una ofensa en lugar de buscar venganza. Queridos amigos, la fe se vuelve poderosa cuando se traduce en amor. El mundo no necesita cristianos que solo hablen de Dios; necesita cristianos cuyas vidas ayuden a otros a encontrarse con Dios.

¿Qué le debes a Dios? En el Evangelio, Jesús nos pide que demos al César lo que es del César y a Dios lo que es de Dios. La moneda lleva la imagen del César, pero ¿qué imagen llevamos nosotros? El Libro del Génesis nos dice que hemos sido creados a imagen y semejanza de Dios. Por lo tanto, dar a Dios lo que le pertenece significa ofrecerle no solo nuestro dinero o unos minutos de oración, sino toda nuestra vida: nuestro corazón, nuestras decisiones, nuestras relaciones, nuestros dones y nuestro futuro. Podemos pagar nuestros impuestos, cumplir con nuestros deberes y trabajar duro, pero nunca debemos vender nuestra conciencia, abandonar nuestra fe ni sacrificar nuestra relación con Dios a cambio de ganancias mundanas. Hoy, preguntémonos: ¿He entregado mi corazón a Dios, o se lo he entregado por completo al dinero, a la ambición, al resentimiento o al miedo? Puede que el César tenga derecho a nuestras monedas, pero Dios tiene derecho a nuestros corazones.

Que aprendamos a vivir de forma responsable en este mundo sin olvidar nuestro hogar eterno, y que todo lo que hagamos refleje la imagen de Dios que hay en nosotros. Amén.

A Note From The SJB Principal

Dear St. Benedict Parishioners,

You are invited to Harvest Fest, our annual fall celebration with St. John Bosco Catholic School and St. Benedict Catholic Church.

Join us Saturday, October 24, from 5 to 8 pm on the back grounds of the St. John Bosco campus. Come in costume and bring the whole family for an evening of carnival games, a pumpkin scavenger hunt, petting zoo, costume contest, lip sync battle, raffle baskets, and plenty of community spirit. After a long Arizona summer, we have earned a fun night together.

Please bring a non-perishable food donation for St. Vincent de Paul. Each child who donates will receive a Harvest Fest activity bag, including a map for the pumpkin scavenger hunt. Completed maps can be turned in for a prize.

Tickets are available in advance at sjbosco.org/harvestfest and at the door. Please use the southeast gate by the playground and fields to enter. We would love to see our parish and school families there!

Joyful Blessings,
Jamie Bescak, M.Ed., Principal
